The future belongs to engineers and inventors, according to the Government of the country. Prime Minister Mikhail Mishustin announced that children will join the advanced engineering schools, which were established on the basis of universities last year. From their school years, they will be able to participate in projects and delve into all technical processes.

This is the talk show "Bolshaya Studiya." In the studio are Margarita Khizhnyak and Vladislav Chukhrov.

In the Chelyabinsk region, there are currently no such advanced engineering schools. Unfortunately, we did not pass the selection last year. However, there are all chances for their creation this year, especially since technical specialties have long been a priority in the South Urals due to demand from enterprises.

In our region, technoparks and quantoriums are actively operating, and in small towns and villages, additional education centers called "Tochka Rosta (Points of Growth)" are opening. Schools for young inventors and stations for young technicians are being established.
